Arahina

 NZ Diploma in Youth Work

 Māori Women's Development Inc.

For Arahina, no two days are the same. Currently working for Māori Women's Development Inc. as the Rangitahi Project Manager, Arahina spends her days organising programmes and events across Aotearoa with young people in schools and youth organisations, teaching them to run business enterprise programmes.

Arahina started her journey with WelTec in 2015, completing a degree in Youth Work in 2018 (see similar programmes). Her experience going through hard times as a young person herself fuelled her passion to become the role model she wished she always had.

For Arahina, youth work is her way of giving back to her community and helping people turn their lives around. Her favourite part of the job is igniting an excitement for entrepreneurship within young people and introducing them to tools they can create a future in business with.

As a Māori woman, it was important for Arahina to be able to share her learnings at WelTec through things like waiata and sharing stories, and her tutors encouraged her to be true to her culture and identity which helped her finish the programme. To this day, Arahina still implements models she learnt at WelTec into her everyday work.

Arahina's mahi inspiring youth to spark their inner entrepreneur has inspired her own passion for entrepreneurship, as she plans to start her own business one day in the future. Her advice for students interested in studying Youth Work is to use your passion as your drive. "Continue to tap into your passion for working with youth and remember your drive."

COVID-19

Due to the current COVID-19 pandemic, all students applying for entry to a health or social practice programme are strongly recommended to be vaccinated against COVID-19.

COVID-19 vaccination statement

All organisations engaging health and social practice workers have obligations under the Health and Safety at Work Act 2015 to take all reasonable steps to eliminate, or otherwise control, the risk of COVID-19 transmission in the workplace. The NZ government has mandated the vaccine for frontline health care workers.

Many of the health and social practice providers we work with are now requiring their staff, including any students on placement, to be vaccinated and provide proof of vaccination.

Students who have not been vaccinated or choose not to disclose their vaccination status will be considered unvaccinated which will have an impact on their ability to be accepted into placements; and this will, in turn, have an impact on their ability to successfully complete the programme. These students will meet with the Programme Manager or delegate to discuss the implications of non-vaccination/nondisclosure and
